Farm Safety Program Here To Be Adopted By State

LOCAL SAFETY COUNCIL FIRST TO TAKE ACTION

State Officials Come Here For Information To Expand Program

Safety on the farm program in Fayette County, as organized by the Fayette County Safety Council, of which F. E. Hill is the chairman, is to be adopted by the State organization and carried to all counties in Ohio.

This came to light Thursday afternoon at a conference held at the Dayton Power and Light Company building, in which representatives of the state organization obtained full details of safety on the farm as stressed by the Fayette County Safety Council and announced plans to have the same plan adopted in other counties.

In other words the plan adopted here becomes the pattern for the state, because Fayette County's Safety Council was the first one in Ohio to set up a distinct farm safety program.

Coming here from Columbus for the conference, which started with a luncheon, were: Mrs. Lottie Randolph, assistant state director of agriculture; C. W. McCune, head of the Agricultural Engineering Department, Ohio State University; Ralph Howard, head of the Vocational Agricultural Department and Harry Pontius, chairman of the Farm Bureau Safety Department for the state.

Meeting with the men were: Chairman Forest E. Hill, W. W. Montgomery, county agent, and Ralph Nisler, Deputy Master of the Grange in Ohio.

The conference here was the result of a recent meeting of the All Ohio Safety Council in Columbus, at which time Hill stressed the importance of a safety program for the farm and told something of the program being carried out here. This instantly attracted attention of the Ohio Safety Council.

Full information regarding the farm safety plan carried out in Fayette County, was given to the visiting officials.

Hill and the other members of the Fayette County Safety Council present, stressed the fact that modern farm machinery and equipment has added to the hazards of farm life, both in the field and in the home, and that with additional unskilled help on the farm, there is still greater need of safety measures.

Hill pointed out that the safety program on the farm should keep pace with increase machinery and equipment which add to the dangers of serious accidents, and how, if properly managed, a safety program can do much toward abolishing accidents that would otherwise occur.

The Fayette County Safety Council feels highly complimented that its work here should be adopted as a pattern for the state generally, and expects that the plan originating with the local safety council will spread to other states.

Funeral services for George S. DeLong, who died in this city Thursday, will be held at the Klever Funeral Home Monday at 10:30 A. M. and burial will be made in the Washington C. H. Cemetery.

Rev. George B. Parkin will conduct the services.

STORES TO CLOSE ON MONDAY FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Services Planned Both for Sunday and Monday To Honor Dead

The second wartime Memorial Day—in a quarter of a century—is to be observed as a holiday Monday in Washington C. H., although many of the customary decoration services will be held on Sunday, the red-lettered date on the calendar.

The great majority of the city's retail stores and other places of business will be closed on Monday as a tribute to the country's war dead. Fifty-four of the up-town stores will be closed for certain and there may be more. There will hardly be an open door along the streets of the business section of the city from late Saturday night until the regular opening time Tuesday morning.

Although the proprietors of most of the uptown stores got their heads together and agreed on the Monday closing, there has been no unanimity of action among these, principally the groceries, in the residential sections. Several of the neighborhood stores have been running on a seven-day-a-week schedule for months and the general impression is that food for unexpected guests can be obtained there in emergencies.

The decision on the Monday holiday observance was delayed because of some confusion due to Memorial Day coming on Sunday.

The places of business which have been definitely committed to the Monday closing are:

The Craig Bros. Co.; Miller-Jones; Morris 5c to $1.00 Store; G. C. Murphy Co.; The Steen Dry Goods Co.; A&P Super Market; Marvin's Thrift 'E' Super Market; Dale's; Ralph V. Taylor; Kaufman's Bargain Store; Montgomery Ward & Co.; Wilson's Hardware; J. C. Penney Co.; Enslin's Dot Store; The Cussins & Fearn Co.; Kroger Grocery & Baking Co.; Heber W. Roe; W. LeRoy Burris; Levy Clothing Co.; C. A. Gossard Co.; W. H. Limes; R. Brandenburg Motor Sales; Ohio Water Service Co.; Dayton Power & Light Co.; Brownell & Co.; A. Clark Gossard; Red & White Market; Liscianro Bros.; Albers Super Market; Nickl Shop; Farmers' Produce; Gorton Electric Shop; Farm Bureau Co-op; Summers' Music Store; Washington Paint & Glass Co.; Goodyear Service; Foutch's Bakery; Cherry Beauty & Barber Shop; Beauty Garden; Bee's Beauty Shoppe; Silhouette Beauty Shop; Helen's Beauty Shop; Bob's Dry Cleaning; Model Dry Cleaning; Fenton's Dry Cleaning; Herb & Hardy Dry Cleaning; The Washington Savings Bank; The First National Bank; First Federal Savings & Loan Co.; The City Loan Co.; Economy Savings & Loan Co.; Helfrich Bros.; and Washington Produce Co.

SEVEN MEN ACCEPTED OUT OF LAST GROUP

Seven out of the 14 Fayette County men who were sent to the Columbus Induction Center, Tuesday, were accepted, and these will be sent to Fort Benjamin Harrison, June 1.

The seven accepted are: Charles Marion Warner, Forrest Edward Judy (Marine Corps); Hugh Patrick Morarity, Eugene Graham Heath, William Arthur Thompson (Marine Corps), James Paul Hidy and Robert Bruce Allen.

opening of the War Labor Board case," Bass declared.

The walkouts occurred after the WLB reduced to three cents its panel's recommendation for an eight cents an hour increase in Goodyear, Goodrich and Firestone Workers' pay.

Strikers at the U. S. Rubber reclaiming company's Buffalo, N. Y., plant also voted to return after a navy spokesman warned that the armed forces would take over unless the walkout ended. The rubber strikes all stemmed from union dissatisfaction with War Labor Board handling of wage disputes.

Production virtually halted, however, at the Marlin Rockwell Ball and Roller Bearing Plant, largest war production factory in Jamestown, N. Y., where 1,600 CIO Union Automobile Workers joined in a strike unauthorized by the union. The men protested hiring of workers from outside at what they said were higher wages than they received.

TOLEDO STRIKE ENDS

TOLEDO, May 28.—(AP)—Settlement of a labor dispute which caused a three-day work stoppage at Spicer Manufacturing Corp., maker of axles and transmissions for army vehicles, cleared the way today for resumption of jeep production at Willys-Overland Motors, Inc.

John Connor, special representative of the War Labor Board said more than 4,000 Spicer employees would start returning to their jobs at 7 A. M. Saturday. He did not indicate when jeep production, dependent on Spicer axles, would be resumed.

POPPY SALES HERE ALL SET FOR SATURDAY

American Legion and VFW Sponsor Annual Event for Disabled Veterans

School girls will be on the streets of Washington C. H. bright and early again Saturday morning with the bright red poppies made by the disabled veterans of the first World War. It is an annual event, this Poppy Sale, and has had staunch support of the people of Fayette County in times of peace, the records of sales in other years show.

Both the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars will hold Poppy Sales here again this year. The background and the purposes of the two sales are similar although conducted separately.

The money raised through the Poppy Sale goes to make life a little brighter for the veterans and their families. Throughout the year, wounded Americans who helped beat back the German threat in 1917 and 1918 keep their hands busy while they lie in hospitals, the price they are still paying for America's freedom.

Camp Fire Girls and Girl Reserves are to sell the poppies for the American Legion and junior high school girls will offer those for the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Mrs. Manetta Ramsey, of the Legion Auxiliary, which handles the Paul H. Hughey Post sale, said of the American Legion sale that last year 3,000 poppies were sold here and that the supply was exhausted before the middle of the day. This year, she added, 5,000 will be available.

Allan Sells is head of the VFW and Mrs. William Shoults is head of the auxiliary in charge of the poppy sale for their organization.

In the annual Poppy Poster Contest conducted by the American Legion in the city schools, Marlene Gilley of Eastside was awarded the first prize and will have her poster entered in the statewide contest. The other winners were: Dolores Ann Ramey, Rose Avenue; Carl Orr, Cherry Hill, James Moore, Sunnyside, and Cletis Jane Allen, Central. The judges were Mrs. H. T. Hoffman, Mrs. Gilbert Adams and Ralph Taylor.

Both the American Legion and VFW committee were anticipating more generous buying Saturday because of the growing demands due to the present war.

and small Axis garrison there. Long-range fighters of the Middle East command continued their patrol of the Aegean Sea, keeping Axis eyes anxiously trained on the Balkans. They shot down at least one enemy plane.

Nazi spokesmen found occasion to warn Axis peoples against the Allied "nervous war," especially in Italy and the Balkans. A Swedish correspondent in Berlin said German sources told of propaganda leaflets spread over Italy in the past 48 hours. One German military analyst acknowledged the Allies had the power to attack Italy, but added "don't forget Malta was attacked by the Germans and Italians for many months and never gave up."

Sharp land and air battles are raging in the Kuban delta area after a period of comparative quiet, but neither official Russian disclosures nor dispatches from the front today confirmed German reports that a Soviet army of 150,000 is attempting an all-out smash to Kerch Strait.

Both the midnight and the noon communiques were silent on the fighting northeast of Novorossisk, where the German radio declared at least 10 Russian divisions and a great wedge of tanks was trying to batter through a narrow sector under cover of more than 200 planes.

Front line dispatches declared the Red army had repelled a big group of enemy infantry trying to improve its positions and said the Red air force and the German plane fleet were fighting great battles in the same area.

The Russians reported they warded off the Nazis, downing 64 German planes in one day and losing only 13 Russian craft.

West of Rostov the Red army was reported to have taken the initiative in violent local combats which resulted in the capture of an important hill and a general improvement of the Russian position.

The Soviet noon communique noted new stirrings on the Leningrad front where eight German planes were reported shot down and 34 German outposts destroyed by Red army detachments that killed about 200 of the enemy.

Long range Red army planes blasted German airdromes and a ship and planes in the Black Sea fleet sank two enemy motor barges, the noon war bulletin said.

The RAF raid on Jena was executed by the speedy, plywood Mosquito bombers and involved a round trip of more than 1,000 miles—one of the longest ever made by the Mosquitoes, which also have been used to attack Berlin.

THE WAR TODAY

Hitler's Brain Trust Foggy And Is Not Helped Much By Latest Allied Council

Herr Hitler's brain trust appears to be wandering about in foggy uncertainty regarding Allied intentions—a strained state of mind not relieved any by President Roosevelt's unamplified announcement that "the conference of the combined staffs in Washington has ended in complete agreement on future operations in all theaters of the war."

You couldn't blame for the poor Fuehrer if he got mad and cald the war off, on the grounds that the enemy is using unfair tactics. As an illustration of the position, important circles in the Boche capital yesterday produced these divergent ideas:

The Allies are getting ready for invasion and Germany must go on the defensive. There will be a Russian offensive. There won't be a Russian offensive for at least a month. There won't be any Russian offensive this summer. Stalin won't attack the Nazis first because he isn't sure whether the Anglo-American combination is ready to invade Western Europe.

In the midst of this muddled speculation came word of the successful Red attack against the fiercely defended German bridgehead on the Kuban Delta opposite the Crimea. But while the Nazis knew that they had taken a beating, this didn't clarify the question of who is going to inaugurate the summer's grand slam—if any—and when.

The Russian drive is for the purpose of ousting the Nazis entirely from this side gateway to the Caucasus. The Germans have been hanging onto this sector for dear life, in hope of being able to land an army there from the Crimea, which lies just across the narrow strait of Kerch.

Therefore the Red move is in the first place defensive. However, if successful it immediately puts the Bolsheviks in position to capitalize it in a major offensive against the entire right wing of Hitler's forces which have their main anchor west of Rostov where the mighty Don empties into the Sea of Azov.

That much isn't difficult to figure out. But is Stalin going to undertake a major offensive, or does he intend to wait until John Bull and Uncle Sam have clambered ashore in Western Europe?

Well, only the Allied high command knows that—we hope. If America and Britain are going to be able to invade Western Europe in the near future, then it wouldn't be surprising if it had been agreed that Stalin should hold his hand so that concerted offensives can be made on both the eastern and western fronts. This would put Herr Hitler in a position similar in some ways that occupied by the Kaiser in the last war, that is, hurling troops madly back and forth across Europe to defend two fronts at once. However, the Munich paper-hanger suffers from a disability which didn't afflict his august predecessor—Germany's transport system is pretty well shot to pieces now, and speedy movement of troops and supplies would be a tough problem. It would be particularly difficult because of the terrific air-power which the Allies can bring against communications—something the old Kaiser didn't have to worry about greatly.

However, if the Allied high command isn't prepared to undertake major invasions anywhere in Europe in the near future, then it's likely that Stalin either will strike at Hitler, or that the latter will have one more great fling at trying to destroy the Red military machine. One scarcely would expect the eastern front to remain in a state of comparative inaction throughout the good fighting months of the summer.

Actually Hitler and Stalin are sparring with each other up and down the entire length of the thousand mile battle-front, looking for an opening that may permit of more extensive operations. Hitler, of course, is having to be doubly cautious so as not to get caught with a big offensive in Western Europe while he is launching an attack against Russia.

2,184 YANKS KILLED IN WAR IN AFRICA

WASHINGTON, May 28—(AP)—American army casualties in North Africa from November 8 to May 15 totalled 2,184 killed, 9,437 wounded and 6,937 missing or prisoners, Secretary of War Stimson said today.

Total Allied casualties in the Tunisian campaign, including British and French figures not reported in detail, were "less than 70,000," Stimson said. By contrast, he said, the Axis lost 3,000 killed, 26,400 wounded and 266,600 prisoners.

We stand squarely for the best interest of the Citizens of Washington C. H. and Fayette County.

TO OUR GRADUATES

It is with a certain sadness and some apprehension that parents and friends see the high school graduates receiving their diplomas this year.

From the Washington C. H. and village and rural high schools of Fayette County, scores of young people either have or soon will receive the certificates indicating that they have completed their public school course. They are about to enter upon careers for themselves at a time when confusion and uncertainty as to the future creates for many of them a difficult psychology with reference to the life before them.

Graduation and the so-called "commencement day" usually marks an important turning point in a young person's life. It is often considered the day that she or he "grew up." That is more true this year than ever, because of the vital need for our high school graduates to "grow up." They face a new responsibility, a heavier responsibility, because of present war conditions and the tremendous problems that will face this nation and the world in the "after war" years ahead.

To many of our young graduates today means the start of a lifetime job. To a comparative few the next few weeks will mean an interlude while they prepare to continue their studies. But to all of them, whether they enter the armed forces of their country, join the "land army" of the civilian front or take places in the production line, graduation day marks a beginning of their most valuable education. They have up to this time been learning the things which make a happy adult life possible. Now they must learn how to apply that knowledge to fit their own needs, their desires and their future in a rapidly changing world.

To do these things successfully they must not forget that education continues throughout their lifetime whether they are on a Pacific isle or the back 40 acres on the home place. Our best advice to them is to keep alert, don't hunt the "easy" and "soft" path, be willing to accept a fair share of responsibility both at home or in civil life, then they'll learn that this is a pretty wonderful world after all even if we are having trouble keeping it on an even keel at present. There are hundreds of good wholesome hobbies that they may find attractive; if they let their minds stagnate they'll soon find life very boring. Above all, we urge these graduates to keep busy. Ability to provide their own enjoyment will prove more valuable than money. Their real education is just beginning.

And now to all our city and county graduates, we sincerely wish the best of luck to every one.

Tobacco Effects Slight On High Blood Pressure

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE DISCUSSED last week some of the fears—whether well founded or not—as to the effect of tobacco and concluded that while "moderate" was a word subject to considerable personal interpretation, moderate smoking will not bring on any diseased condition, either functional or organic.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

There remains the question of whether smoking is harmful to people who are not entirely healthy at the time of beginning the experience. Those who have high blood pressure are particularly anxious about this subject. In making a decision on the point it is obvious that we have to have some standards. It will not do to leave it merely to opinion nor to the report of the person with high blood pressure as to how he feels. After taking a smoke, the fellow with high blood pressure will always defiantly tell his wife that he "feels fine."

By way of having a standard, we know that physiologically tobacco contracts the blood vessels, particularly on the surface of the body. By using a thermometer which takes merely surface temperature—that is, applied to the surface of the skin—we have a method of measuring the effect of tobacco.

Experiments on Students

With this standard of measurement Drs. Cates and Giovannazzi, of Los Angeles, experimented on six young, healthy medical students. They found in all of them that the peripheral temperature of the skin was decreased from 1.3° C. to 0.5° C. after smoking. In the group of people with high blood pressure, most of them over 50 years old, after smoking the change of temperature in the skin of the fingers and toes was never more than 3.5° C., and most of them, less than 1° C.

In studying the effect of tobacco on the same two groups as to the change in blood pressure the young, healthy medical students showed an elevation in blood pressure of from 13 to 35 points. In the group of high blood pressure patients of older age the greatest change in blood pressure was only 15 points and the average was 8 points.

This would seem to indicate that tobacco has not as bad an influence on high blood pressure as might be expected and, in fact, the high blood pressure patients do not show as much change as the normal patients without high blood pressure.

Changes Skin Temperature
It is valuable to note that the temperature of the skin and the toes changed considerably in all patients after smoking. This should be applied to the condition known as Burger's disease. Burger's disease is an inflammation of the blood vessels of the extremities—usually the toes—as a result of which the inflammatory exudate and clotting of the blood often cause a closing of the blood vessels with consequent discomfort.

It has never been suggested that tobacco causes Burger's disease because a number of cases have been found in people who have never used tobacco. But there is no question that once the condition is established, smoking makes it worse.

The most successful treatment for Burger's disease is to apply heat to the extremities and by various foot exercises to increase the circulation in the toes. It can be seen that if tobacco reduces the temperature of the toes—probably by creating a spasm of the vessels—there is good reason why tobacco does harm in this condition.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. T. F.:—Recently you said that people should not drink a pint of carrot juice a day and drinking a pint of anything except water is a bad plan. Do you mean that drinking milk in these amounts is a bad plan?

Answer: I am afraid you have caught me in an oversight. I certainly do not consider milk a bad drink, especially for children, although I am a little doubtful about whether more than a pint a day for adults is a good thing.

J. Q.:—What is the general cause of skin being too dry and itchy, but with no visible signs of an eczema?

Answer: Probably taking baths too often.

SYNOPSIS

Notified that her brother, MELVIN MARSDEN, is missing in action, JEAN MARSDEN, who has risen to the top as a fashion model, quits her job to become secretary to STEVE LANDIS, director of a new rubber plant in Mexico. Jean has an abrupt introduction to caffeine, hand-some CURLEY, employed by MR. AND MRS. PARKINSON, owners of the Rancho Carolina. Jean appears to have roused the jealousy of ROSITA, pretty little Mexican girl who is in love with Curley.

YESTERDAY: Curley comes into town, gets Jean and takes her back to the rancho with him for dinner.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

MR. AND MRS. PARKINSON were waiting by the dinner table which had been laid in the patio.

"Well, this is more like it!" Mr. Parkinson advanced to take both of Jean's hands as she came through the wall gate, with Curley following her.

Mrs. Parkinson's laugh was softly rebuking. "You really put me on a spot, darling, by insisting on moving out before they came home."

"Didn't you have enough of an audience for your tales of travel and brave deeds?" Jean teased.

"That's exactly it," affirmed Mr. Parkinson. "Louise always lifts me of those patrician eyebrows at me and murmurs, 'Really!' That's no decent reaction, now is it?"

A servant lit the storm candles as they sat down. Rosita's place was empty. Jean's eyes met Mrs. Parkinson's in silent question. Mrs. Parkinson nodded, smiling. "I suppose there is no use trying to cover it," she murmured. "Rosita decided she would dine in her room when we told her Curley had gone after you."

"What?" Curley regarded Mrs. Parkinson in quick surprise. "You mean," he scoffed incredulously, "that one of my girls objects to another of my girls?"

They laughed at his arrogance, but Curley leaped to his feet. "This is unthinkable. I'll bring her down." His lithe, tall body swung across winding outer stairs to the upper balcony. He gave a couple of gay, piercing whistles as he disappeared into the darkness of the upper floor.

"He'll laugh her out of it," said Parkinson easily. "She's quite a gal, Rosita!"

"Yes—she is." To Jean, the period of silence that followed Curley's disappearance seemed an interminable age. As she played with the delicious oysters in her cocktail glass, she could see too plainly Curley laughing Rosita out of it. She would be waiting for him—weeping, perhaps, her huge eyes tragic, her caressing voice heavy with pain. Or she would throw herself into his arms pleading passionately for his affection. Surely, if he intended bringing her back to the table, he'd be here before now!

At last he appeared on the balcony, ran down the winding stairs and came back to the table. Jean despised herself for her moment of jealous torture. She did not even look up as he said cheerfully, "I'm not such a hot persuader."

They passed the subject off easily. Mrs. Parkinson said, "She'll be all right in the morning." Mr. Parkinson winked at Jean and murmured, "The little girl will just have to learn to face these crises." And went on with his glowing and graphic account of their trip. Curley, he said, had been a fine pilot. Once at the controls he had shown none of his usual tendencies to sleep 15 minutes out of every hour, as he did at home.

Curley yawned. "I'll make up for it," he promised, grinning.

Mrs. Parkinson asked in detail about Mexico City. "Do you know, I've been there only once," she said to Jean, "but I loved it. Do you suppose you can wrangle that hard-working boss of yours into giving you a vacation in a few months to go down with me?"

Jean gasped with delight. "I'll do my best in such a worthy cause," she promised.

Their running chatter went on effortlessly through the delectable courses. The servant had whisked Rosita's plate from the table, and they heard no more of her until they were lingering over cigarettes and cordials. Then suddenly there floated down through the warm fragrance of the evening the haunting strains of her melodeon. Her slight, sweet voice throbbled with tender hopelessness.

They exchanged glances of sympathetic amusement at the girl's dramatizing. "Do you hear what she's singing?" Mrs. Parkinson whispered. "Hasta la Vista—the song she sings when Curley has gone away."

Curley had the grace to grow slightly embarrassed. He suggested they go for a walk. Mrs. Parkinson laughed at him. "Just to give your conscience some air? I, for one, don't feel the need of exercise, and I don't believe Jean does either. She's been a pretty busy girl."

In fact, her adventures began the night before you two left. On their way home from here that night she and Mr. Landis saw the train wrecked and they were shot at by a carload of escaping bandits!"

Curley's gaze swung around to Jean with sudden flattery intensity. "Is that so?" he cried.

Jean nodded. "Absolutely. It was the thrill of a lifetime."

"You mean they wrecked the train to rob it?" Mr. Parkinson demanded, shocked.

"And got away with the mail bag," Jean nodded. "Fortunately, there were no passengers." She was carefully weighing her words, giving out no more information than necessary as Steve had requested, though she longed to recite the whole colorful story, including the constant haunting of their office by the chief of police. They would enjoy it.

For once, Curley's lightheartedness seemed to have deserted him. When Jean mentioned this archly, he grinned, slightly abashed. "It's kind of a terrible thought," he admitted, "that crime must rear its ugly head way down in a forgotten little Eden like this. Was anyone hurt?"

Jean told of her evening of playing nurse to the Mexican engineer, trainman and Steve. Curley bristled with spirit at the mention of Steve. "That settles it," he told her firmly. "I won't have you going to any more wrecks if you insist on nursing that good-looking boss of yours afterward. I'll have to stay at home and keep you away from wrecks."

"Not if you drive me around in that Fordango of yours," retorted Jean. "There's a potential wreck in every mile."

Mr. Parkinson was viewing the problem from a standpoint of logic. "I can't see why hold-up men would have to wreck a train to rob it," he muttered. "Why couldn't they have waved a flag on the track? That funny little train would stop for anything."

"Maybe they wanted to show what big, bad wolves they were," shrugged Curley. "Don't you think it might be exciting to fix a couple of tracks and then lie there waiting till the train came along and went boom?"

"No, I don't." Mr. Parkinson's tone was sharp, his usual appreciation of Curley's banter missing. "There are some things which are not exactly suitable subjects for levity, Curley."

Curley received the rebuke good naturedly. "Spoken like a father," he murmured. "And now what about some music to soothe the savage breast?"

"Aren't you ever serious, Curley?" cried Jean despairingly, as Curley drove her home later, through a warm fog blowing in off the sea.

"Right now I am."

She turned to give him his handsome profile a puzzled frown. "What do you mean by that?"

They were coming into the outskirts of the village. Curley pulled down the throttle and the Fordango wheezed to a slow stop beside a gaunt Yucatan tree. He straightened under the wheel and shoved his hand down into his pocket to bring out a small box. "Open it," he commanded.

Wonderingly, Jean removed the cover, and pulled out a delicately carved silver bracelet. She cried out with impulsive delight at the dainty ornament, as she slid it over one slim hand. "Thank you," she said lightly. "It's a lovely coming home gift."

"It isn't a gift," said Curley. "It's a fair trade."

Before she could make a move to stop him, his arms had swept her to him. He had kissed her—a short, rough kiss that left her flaming faced, breathless. Angriously she cried, "You—"

His strong, sensitive, vibrant hands were pinning hers at her sides. "Remember this, my beautiful Jeannie. His voice cut harshly into the quiet night, his black eyes, not laughing, searched her face with a strange look. "No matter what I do, I'll always—feel the same way about you."

Two minutes later, with a last screech of brakes, he had swung up before her hotel.

Analyzing Puzzle-as-You-Go Tax Plan

WASHINGTON. The income tax outlook: Puzzle-as-you-go.

Under the so-called pay-as-you-go plan, your tax problems of the past probably will seem, by comparison, like kindergarten stuff.

Here's a preview of what will happen under what looks to be the future law—the compromise plan adopted by congressional conferees for submission to the House and Senate.

For the average taxpayer it will mean:

1. More—not less—taxes this year and in the years just ahead.

2. More complicated tax forms to fill out.

3. A check-off of 20 per cent on wages and salaries (above exemptions)—17 per cent to apply against income taxes, 3 per cent for victory tax.

The plan for cancellation of 75 per cent of 1942 or 1943 taxes, whichever are less, actually means higher taxes for the average taxpayer in 1943, because he'll be paying on 1943 income, which generally is higher, instead of on 1942 income; in 1944 and 1945 (quite aside from any future increases in tax rates) because the uncanceled 25 per cent of 1942 taxes must be paid in two installments in those two years.

The average taxpayer will have to keep these dates in mind:

June 15—When the next quarterly installment will have to be paid on the same basis as last March 15 (both March and June payments are to be credited against 1943 taxes).

July 1—Then the check-off on wages and salaries is to go into effect.

Sept. 15—Anybody whose income isn't subject to the check-off (except farmers), those whose wages and salaries are more than $2700 if single or $3500 if married, and those who have or expect to have $100 or more of income in addition to their wages and salaries, all must file estimates of their 1943 income. At the same time they must figure out how much taxes they'll owe over and above what they've already paid and or will pay through the check-off, and pay half of this amount owed.

Dec. 15—Other half of above due. Also deadline for farmers to file estimates of 1943 income and pay balance due.

March 15, 1944—Every taxpayer must file a final report on 1943 income, pay any balance due (including any on victory tax). Also he must pay half the uncanceled portion of 1942 taxes.

March 15, 1945—Other half of uncanceled 1942 taxes comes due.

Note: While the check-off for victory tax will drop from 5 per cent to 3 per cent on July 1, the actual tax liability still will be 5 per cent—and that's how you'll have to figure it up at the final reckoning next March. But then you can get credit up to 22 per cent of the whole victory tax if single, or 40 per cent if married (plus 2 per cent for each dependent) if you spend an equivalent amount during the year for war bonds, life insurance premiums or payment of old debts.

Washington at a Glance

By Charles P. Stewart

Throughout this country and probably throughout all the rest of the United Nations Josef Stalin undoubtedly has been the most generally popular of present war personalities since his abandonment of his Communist International, as a tremendous stride toward a hard-and-fast alliance of the democracies in arms against Fuehrer Hitler and his Axis associates.

To be sure, the action was in the form of a resolution voted by the Comintern executive committee in Moscow, but it is taken for granted on all sides that Premier Stalin dictated it.

It does not necessarily mean that Joe has been converted from Communism. He may believe in it as firmly as ever, as a system for his own people to live by, but he does disassociate himself from a policy of trying to establish it elsewhere by revolutionary methods.

The Communistic organization will continue to exist but it will be Russian; not international. Units in other lands are cut loose, to operate each independently. Moreover, as a farewell bit of advice, their members are urged to join their fellow workers, loyally under their various own governments, in the world fight against totalitarianism.

Allied statesmen and military folk naturally are delighted by the change that has come over the Soviet leader but they do admit that the rapidity of it astonishes them.

It isn't so long since the Kremlin and Berlin had a non-aggression pact with one another and were supposed to be quite friendly.

Then Herr Hitler launched his sudden attack on his Muscovite neighbor. This was enough to make the latter turn immediately resentful, it is true, but Joe certainly was pretty well prepared for the warpath in a hurry.

The evening before the Nazi boss sprang his surprise on Josef, Joe had been known to the Allies as a blankety-blank Communist and his followers as a crew of northern savages. The following morning Joe, then being on the anti-Axis side of the fence, was distinctly persona grata to the democracies and his cohorts were being enthusiastically praised for the gallant defense they were putting up.

Joe, however, didn't get all the democracies help he wanted as soon as he wanted it; so presently he began growling about the delay. He also ignored Washington's hints that he could be helpful himself, to Uncle Sam, by going to the mat with the Japs.

It even was democratically surmised that he was not overly democratic in reality—that he would be a hard customer to deal with after the war, if not earlier.

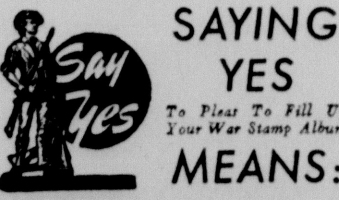

Such talk was getting maddeningly acrimonious, when (all of a sudden) Stalin coughed up an exceedingly pro-Ally broadcast. He said the Allies were performing highly creditably—exactly the reverse of what he previously had been saying. He implied some mean cracks at the Japs. He assured the democracies that Russia would live and die with them.

It was so swift a flop that Washington and London were fairly blabbergasted (though charmed) by it.

Today he is prepared to waive Communistic world revolution for the sake of Allied solidarity.

If Russia had suffered a serious set-back and was scared as to the future, it would have been explicable. No such development had ensued, though. The Soviets still were holding their own. Indeed, they were taking a chance of antagonizing the Japs; it was a word of encouragement to the Chinese. It was a semi-promise to Uncle Samuel.

Joe Stalin is a kind of an Oriental. Perhaps his calculations are different from the Occidentals.

MORE SELECTS TO SEE SERVICE IN THE U. S. NAVY

Greater Need To Man Boats Seen as Strength in Ships Grows

The U. S. Navy soon will select a greater share of men furnished by the Fayette County draft board as well as all other draft boards, to man the rapidly growing number of war vessels so that they will be a potent striking force in waging worldwide war.

Captain W. P. Richardson, assistant chief of the State Selective Service headquarters' manpower section made the announcement Thursday, and while no word has yet reached the draft board here, such information is expected without delay.

Making the disclosure last night at a meeting of Cuyahoga County draft officials, Captain Richardson indicated the increase in naval selectees might necessitate closing some of the army's reception centers.

He also predicted Ohio's 330 boards would exhaust their remaining supply of single and childless married registrants in August.

Application of the 3-D classification—for cases where induction would work extreme hardship and privation of a man's dependents—was explained by Richardson.

He reported national headquarters was asking that two factors be taken into account when considering a registrant for 3-D: Will a registrant's induction deprive his dependents of food or shelter?

Pregnancy of a wife or possession of a wife and minor child does not necessarily qualify a registrant for 3-D, Richardson declared. He added that the date when a man acquired dependency of a wife, parent or child was not to govern in determining whether his induction would create "extreme hardship and privation" on them.

For the present the two-week post-induction furloughs beginning June 1 will be granted only to men processed into the army, the draft official asserted. He said the navy would not double its seven-day period of inactive status after induction until some time in July. Army selectees will be granted a 21-day furlough by Sept. 1.

The Cuyahoga County board officials adopted by acclamation a resolution asking President Roosevelt, secretary of war, director Lewis B. Hershey and congress to create a special classification for men rejected for armed service because of moral unfitness, and to provide a legal means of requiring such registrants to work in war production or be assigned to "work of national importance," under military rule if necessary.

London authoritative sources refused to comment.

MEMORIAL DAY 1943 calls for tribute paid to the living heroes who are fighting NOW to preserve the American way of life, as well as to those who have fought in the past for the same ideals.

Memorial Day is dedicated to the soldiers of America—who fought in the past for the country that we are again struggling to preserve. But it is appropriate that this year—1943—in the midst of another great battle for the things Americans hold dear—we pay tribute to those living heroes who are RIGHT NOW doing their share—and more—to carry on the tradition of their forefathers. To honor the men of our community who serve us at battle stations all over the world and camps here in America

Mr. and Mrs. Oather Junk Are Honored at Reception Dinner on Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Oather Junk of Frankfort, were gracious guests of honor at a beautiful reception Thursday afternoon, from three to five o'clock, observing their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

The handsome Junk home was profusely filled with a wealth of golden blooms, with gorgeous yellow roses predominating, mostly gifts from relatives and friends. On the mantel a long and deep watergarden held an abundance of yellow and white snapdragons, for an exquisite centerpiece. Before this artistic background, Mr. and Mrs. Junk received their guests, which numbered seventy-five, who complimented them on this unusual milestone.

Mrs. Junk looked charming in a becoming light blue gown, the color of her bridal attire fifty years ago. She held a colonial bouquet of tulle and roses, made with fancy frills and long yellow satin streamers. Mr. Junk wore a yellow rose boutonniere.

A tea table was beautifully appointed in the dining room, covered with a lace cloth and centered with yellow flowers. The tea dainties and confections were motifs of the occasion, their colors pretty notes to the table decorations. Mrs. Troy Junk and Mrs. Walter Jones, both of Washington Court House, presided at the punch bowl and coffee urn.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Junk were honored at a dinner for fifty relatives and close friends at the Waddell Party Home near Williamsport. The bride's table was beautifully decorated with a three-tiered wedding cake of gold and white, the centerpiece, and with golden tapers lighting it. The other tables had flowers and candles of gold for their centerpieces, and the delicious courses featured the artistic color.

Four of Mr. and Mrs. Junk's children were present for the occasion, Mrs. I. H. MacKinnon, of Leonia, N. J., Mrs. George Putnam O'Brien, of Atlanta, Mrs. Don Metz and Mr. Harold C. Junk, of Chillicothe.

Their son, Pvt. Charles Junk, is in Alaska with the armed forces.

Bride - Elect Is Feted at Two Parties

Miss Mae Louise Foster, daughter of Mrs. Homer Foster, of Bloomingburg, who is the bride-elect of Ensign Harold Wilhelm, has been feted at numerous parties during the month, in Columbus.

At the Maramor Miss Ruth Capes, Miss Jane Sanders, Miss Edna Morgan, Miss Emily Wise and Mrs. Emerson Walters gave a dinner party for the very attractive bride-to-be. After the dinner of attractively prepared and served viands, the hostesses took the guest of honor to their apartment where they showered her with miscellaneous gifts.

Another party for Miss Foster was given at the Beechwald Tavern, in Bexley, for which fifteen intimate friends of the White Cross Hospital were included. Mrs. Fred Harold Allen

The marriage of Miss Frances Jean West, granddaughter of Mrs. Armida C. West, of Washington Court House, to Private First Class Fred Harold Allen, son of Mrs. Fred H. The wedding was an event of May 22nd in the Army Air Base Chapel, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, at half past five o'clock.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Chaplain Lowell S. Thompson, before a setting of palms, gladioli and lilies of the valley.

The bride, a most attractive young girl gifted both in brunette beauty and charming personality, looked lovely in an afternoon frock of navy blue crepe with white lace trimmings and navy accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Mrs. Lawrence W. Armbrust, sister of the groom, was matron of honor, and was becomingly attired in a dress of gold crepe with black accessories. Her flowers were of pink and yellow talisman roses.

Pfc. Dale Parker, of Sioux Falls, S. D., served as best man for the groom.

Mrs. Allen, mother of the groom, wore a dress of soldier blue with matching accessories. She was wearing a corsage of red talisman roses.

A reception was held in the dining room of the Hotel Carpenter immediately following the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Washington High School in the class of 1941 and has been employed at Patterson Field in secretarial work.

Pfc. Allen, who was graduated from Jeffersonville High School in the class of 1940, was employed at Patterson Field, as an electrician, before his induction into the Army last January. He is in Radio Technical Training School at the Army Air Base, Sioux Falls, S. D.

The new Mrs. Allen will remain in Sioux Falls with her husband during his schooling there.

Party Fetes Claire McDonald, 1943 Graduate

Miss Margaret McDonald and Mr. Gus McDonald added another lovely party to the many honoring this year's graduates, when they complimented their attractive young niece, Miss Claire McDonald, with a lovely dinner party Thursday evening.

An orchid and gold color scheme, the class colors, was used in the appointments of the dining table, where the guests were seated for the three course dinner. Covered with an elegant gold damask cloth, orchid and gold snapdragons were gracefully arranged for the lovely centerpiece. Gold candles, with large satin bows of orchid, lighted the table, and were linked together by orchid satin ribbons. The placecards and confections featured the two colors, adding pretty notes to the perfectly beautiful artistry. The hour was prolonged in gayety, always prevalent in this group.

After the dinner, amusing and short notes were written to First Sergeant John McDonald Foeke, a cousin of the guest of honor, who is now in Africa, and after this Mr. McDonald took the girls to the American Legion Carnival for an evening of amusements.

Small Party Thursday Honors Mrs. Barnett

Mrs. Hagler extended most delightful hospitalities during the evening's game, and at the close of which presented to Miss Lorane Kruse an attractive high score award and a lovely gift to Mrs. Barnett.

A salad course was served late in the evening with the small tables centered with a single red Oriental poppy in a silver bud vase. The hour was prolonged in gay sociability and visiting with the very attractive honor guest.

Free the Seas

Before we win the final battle with Hitler's Nazis all navy men are agreed we must win the battle of the Atlantic; that is to free the seas lanes of the German U-boats.

A year ago we were building 54 cruisers and nearly 200 destroyers or just about enough for a two ocean navy.

Now we have come to realize that this war is to the finish, "winner take all," and our Government is building a five ocean navy.

That is why we are being asked to increase our subscriptions for War Bonds. That is why we must do it.

ANOTHER CALL BY BLOOD BANK ARRANGED HERE

Red Cross Unit To Come in For 328 Pints - More Needed for Fighters

The people of Washington C. H. and Fayette County are going to have another chance to give their blood to help save the lives of their country's fighting men who are giving theirs on the field of battle.

For the third time since the war started, the traveling unit of the Red Cross blood bank is coming to Washington C. H. for two days next month—June 7 and 8—just two months after its last call.

With the battle for Africa won when the last of the mighty Axis army surrendered in Tunisia and the Allied assault on Hitler's fortified Europe in prospect, the Red Cross has increased by one-third its quota for Fayette County. Although no specific reasons were made public concerning the increase, it was apparent from word from the nation's capital that increasing casualties among American boys are expected as the Allied assault gathers momentum. And among those American boys poised for the next, and more violent phase of the war, are many from Fayette County.

It was announced following a Thursday night Red Cross committee meeting that Fayette Countyans would be asked to give at least 328 pints of blood this time. Previously, they had given 232 on the first call of the unit and 234 pints on the second call.

Mrs. Selby P. Gerstner is the general chairman and Mrs. Henry Brownell is in charge of recruiting donors. It was said by the chairman after the meeting that anyone who wanted to help save the life of an American fighting man, whether he be on land or sea or in the air, could register with Mrs. Brownell (telephone 21651) or at the First Federal Savings and Loan Co. office on Court Street. The procedure, she added, would be very much the same as that followed on the two previous calls of the unit.

Headquarters for the unit on June 7 and 8 again will be at the Methodist Church where the basement has been fitted out and equipped for the convenience of the donors. It was pointed out also that physicians had given assurance that two months was time enough for the body to rebuild its blood strength and that no ill effects would be felt by those who gave before. Besides, it was made plain, a regular physician, especially trained in blood transfusion work, would be in charge of the unit and that donors would be given physical examinations.

It was said after the committee meeting that in view of the increasing number of colored troops now in uniform, that it was hoped the colored people would give their blood for treatment of their own race who could logically be expected to suffer wounds in battle. Their blood, it was made plain, will be labeled to make sure the plasma gets to colored fighting men exclusively.

Pamphlets sent out by the Red Cross and read at the committee meeting said that sometimes as many as 40 transfusions are necessary to save one life—but it was considered well worth that.

There are today literally hundreds of wounded American boys, doubtless many from here, who already have had their lives saved all because of the contributions people back home have made to the blood bank, members of the committee were told.

POET'S CORNER

DECORATION DAY

Once more the swiftening year has sped
And earth resounds to martial tread;
But in this sweet, memorial hour
Love has its ultimate of power,
And even War must stay its hand.
At her imperious command.

Once more in love and pride we spread
The flowers above our soldier-dead;
Tho' but a memory and a name
Inscribed upon the scroll of fame,
They live within our hearts today...
Ethereal imagines of clay.

Once more with bowed, uncovered heads,
We stand beside their grassy beds,
While heart and voice again renew
Our pledge of consecration true,
To keep the torch of freedom bright
So all the world can see its light.

—Frank Grubbs.

Between 1200 And 1300 Employed At API Factory

MOST MODERN EQUIPMENT USED IN WAR PLANT

Will Continue Operation Producing Auto Parts After the War

Day and night, without cessation, the hum of scores of busy machines, rolls from the huge plant of the Aeronautical Products, Inc., at the southern edge of the city, which is a veritable beehive of industry as it turns out large quantities of precision parts for airplanes.

Between 1200 and 1300 persons, including a host of women, are employed at the plant, which is one of the innumerable but important cogs in America's vast war industry.

Three shifts, working seven days a week, are engaged in turning out some of the most important and vital parts used in war planes as well as other planes.

In less than a year's time the big plant has been developed from scratch until at the present time it is filled with hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of equipment of the latest design.

Some of the huge, automatic machines—and there are whole batteries of them, are said to have cost $32,000 each. These machines, like many others, work with uncanny skill in turning out the parts for which they are designed and adjusted.

Some of them use barrels of oil in the cooling process, and require a great deal of electrical power to operate.

On every side in the big plant are inspectors who go over every piece, as well as keep the machinery in proper condition for continuous operation.

There are electrical furnaces where some of the parts are heated and the degree of hardness obtained is little short of amazing.

Pattern rooms and other vital parts of the plant are fenced off to themselves, with no admittance except to those authorized to enter.

A first aid station, modernly equipped, is a feature of the several facilities to look after the welfare of the small army of employees.

No one is admitted to the plant unless they have business there, and then there is certain red tape that is carried out to insure no possible chance of sabotage.

Regardless of who goes to the plant on business, they are required to register, identify themselves, their appointment is made from the chief guard's office by telephone, and an identification card is filled out and must be presented, as well as the stub returned upon leaving the grounds.

It is strictly a war production plant, and every precaution is taken to safeguard it.

After the war the plant will produce automobile parts as well as airplane parts, and plans call for its full operation regularly in years to come.

RECRUITER FOR WAACS WILL SPEND WEEK HERE

Corporal Agnes Hicks, who is a recruiter for the WAACS and has been sent to Cleveland for three weeks, will be assigned to this city for a week's intensive drive for enrolling women in the WAACS, during the latter part of June, according to word received from headquarters at Columbus.

In all probability no recruiter will be here in the meantime, but those interested may file their applications with Postmaster W. E. Passmore, and they will be forwarded to the proper authorities.

DEATH CLAIMS

DR. P. M. COOK
Former Veterinarian Had Been in Poor Health Past Few Years

A cerebral hemorrhage suffered Wednesday resulted in the death of Dr. Parley Merle Cook, 56, at his home on Columbus Avenue, Thursday at 3 P. M.

Dr. Cook had been in failing health the past five years, having been stricken while an inspector in the U. S. Department of the Interior and stationed at Salt Lake City, Utah.

He was a native of Findlay, Ohio, and came to this city in 1916. For a number of years he followed his profession of Veterinarian. He was a graduate of the George Washington University, Veterinary Department.

For a number of years he was engaged in the insurance business here, and in 1934 went to Salt Lake City. He was forced to give up his position there on account of ill health, and returned to this city last year, where he had since resided.

He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church and the Elks Lodge here.

Surviving are his widow, a son and four daughters: Lieutenant Robert Cook, of Huntsville, Alabama; Miss Betty, at home; Lieutenant Lolita Cook, U. S. Army Nurse, stationed at Tarney General Hospital, Palm Springs, California, who is now enroute to this city by plane; and Florence and Frances at home. One brother, Dr. W. G. Cook, Findlay, also survives.

Funeral services will be held at the Hook Funeral Home, Monday at 1:30 P. M. with Rev. John K. Abernethy in charge. Friends may call at his late home after Saturday morning.

BLACKOUT TEST EXPECTED HERE IN NEAR FUTURE

County Civilian Defense Council Considers Plans At Special Meeting

Fayette County is to receive an order for a complete blackout at an early future date.

Such is the information which came from the Ohio State Council of Defense to the Fayette County Civilian Defense Council Thursday, and as a result, preliminary plans are underway in preparation here.

A meeting of certain officials of the civilian defense organization throughout this district has been called by the state organization to be held at the City Hall in Chillicothe at the office of Mayor H. H. Brown of that city next Tuesday, June 1, at 1:30 P. M., to arrange final details in this region. Several of the officials of the state civilian defense setup are to be present.

City Manager Edwin Ducey, general chairman of the Fayette County Civilian Defense Council, Col. Rell G. Allen, head of the emergency and disaster division of the county organization and Fred Rost, chief of the communications department in this county are to attend the meeting at Chillicothe and bring back information to the County Defense Council here which will be necessary to get ready for the blackout test and air raid warning.

This county and its surrounding district is one of the few sections of the state in which no order had been given by the state organization as yet for an air raid warning and blackout test.

This practice drill now is to come very soon, according to plans announced. The information as to this call came in a letter from Ralph H. Stone, head of the Ohio State Defense Council.

It is also intimated from state sources that a statewide air raid warning and blackout test will follow soon after all districts in the state have completed at least one practice test.

COUNTY HONOR ROLL NEARS COMPLETION

Names of 1600 Men in Service Being Put On It

The Fayette County honor roll in front of the Court House is nearing completion now. Only a comparatively few names remain to be placed on the board.

The roll is behind the cannon of the first World War and serves as a background for it. The patriotic theme is carried out with the names of the boys in service in blue on a white background and the red, white and blue trimmings.

So far there are about 1,600 names on the list to be put on the roll but there is space for about 2,400 names.

Floyd Tracey is the painter for this board.

In anyone knows of any boy in the service from Fayette County whose name is not on the list he is asked to see R. B. (Bud) Sharp at the probate court.

It is this type of bomber that is proving so effective in carrying the aerial warfare to the enemy, and is used for precision bombing at high altitudes.

Many of the bombers are based at Lockbourne, which is one of the most important training bases in this part of the country.

Dayton Also Goes Back To War Time

Both Wright and Patterson Fields as well as Dayton, have adopted War Time instead of the slow time fixed by the legislature sometime ago and as a result there is a further growing demand in this city for return to the fast time until this fall.
